Professional

Requests from local, state, and federal agencies for high-definition photographic, video, and other digital visual assets are assigned to more than 5,300 aircrew members operating CAP's fleet of fixed-wing aircraft and small Unmanned Aerial Systems.

Lives Saved

The “Go-to” Resource

State, local, and federal agencies call on Civil Air Patrol as a versatile post-disaster resource and to help find downed aircraft, lost or injured hikers, stranded motorists, adrift boaters, missing persons, or people trapped by rising water, advancing forest fires, and more.

This CAP radar analysis of a plane crash at sea helped the U.S. Coast Guard rapidly locate the survivors in the vastness of the ocean.

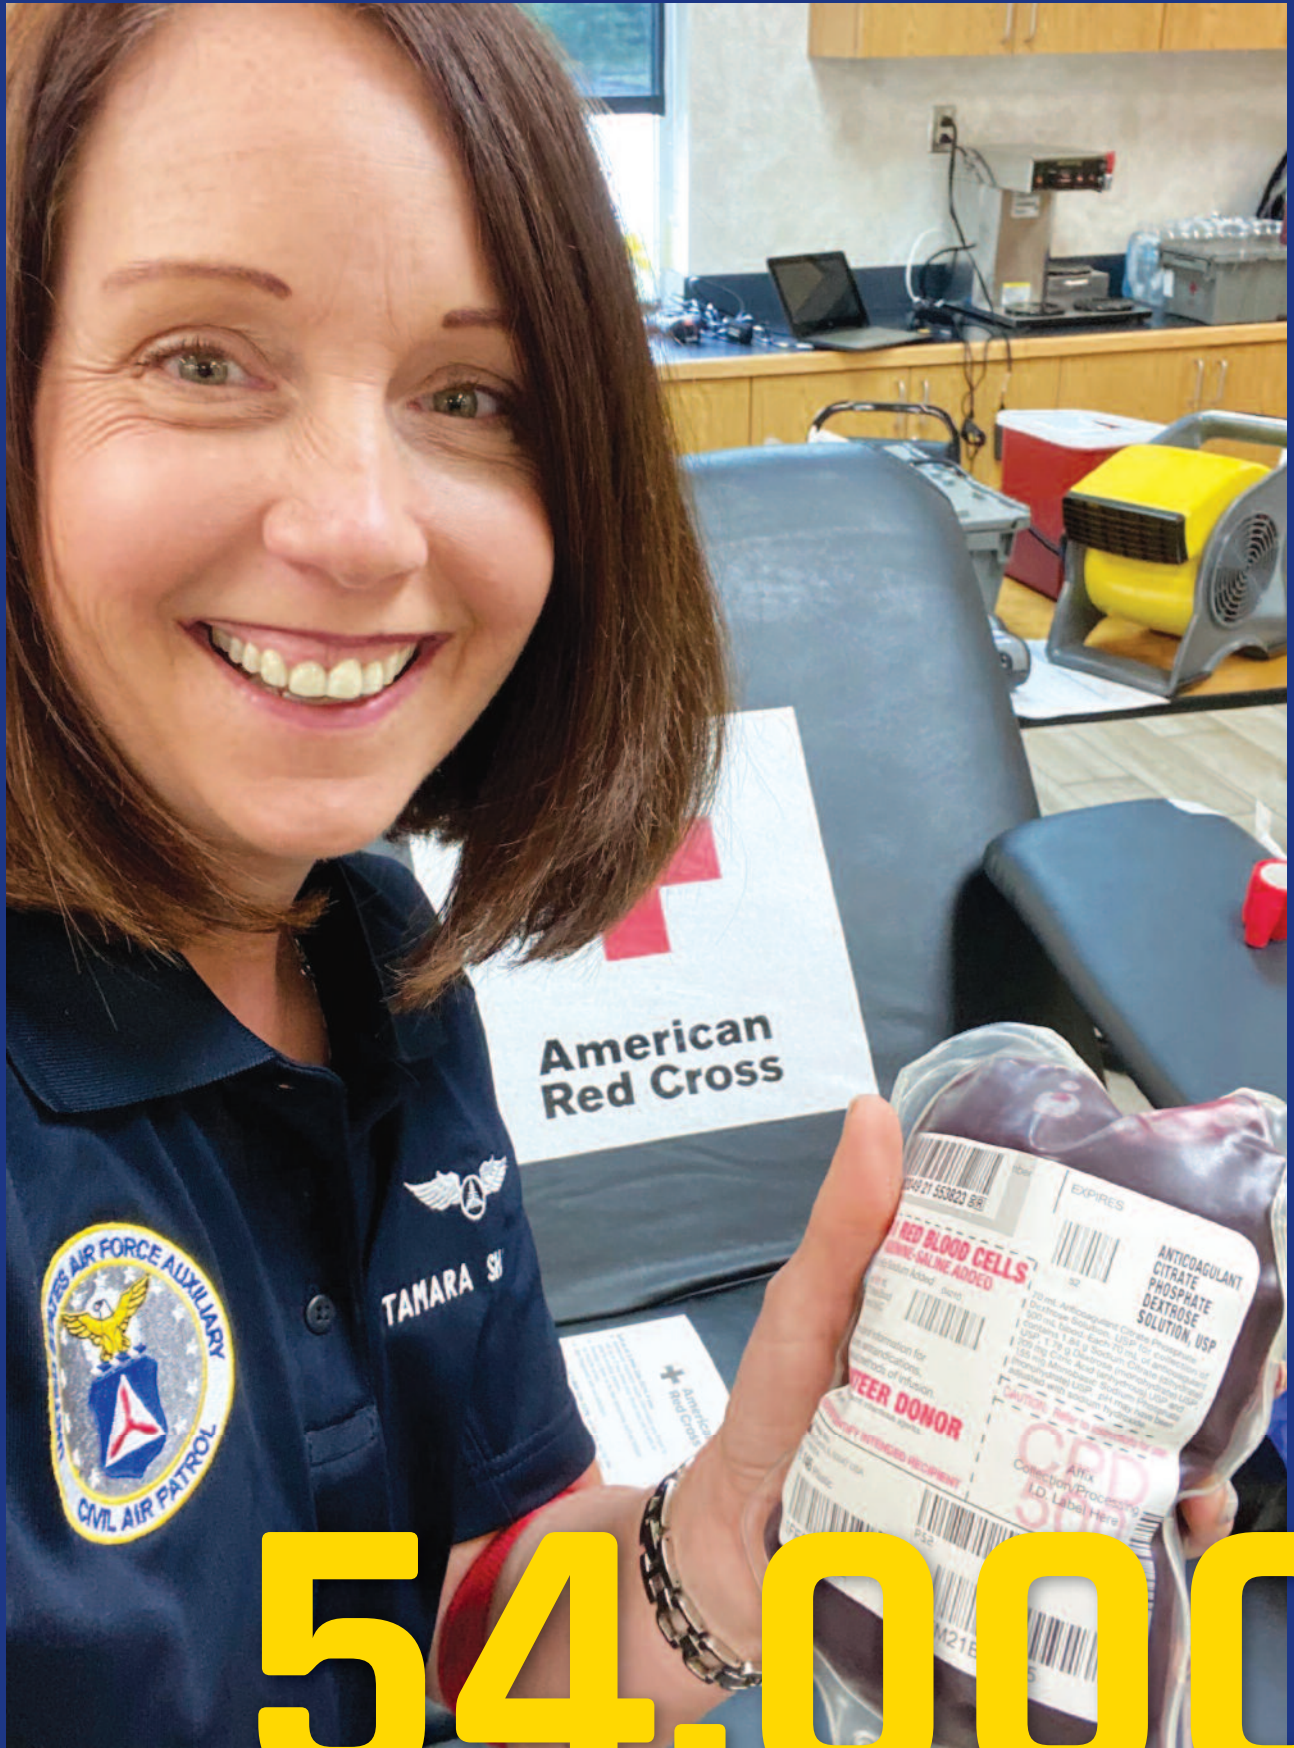

Lifesaving Technology

Using proprietary cellphone forensics and radar analysis technology (used in 95% of 525 searches in 2022), CAP was credited with saving 151 lives — making it one of the most successful years ever for the U.S. Air Force auxiliary’s search and rescue efforts.

The three survivors of this crash, one with a broken back, would have perished due to exposure and hypothermia overnight without the coordination of CAP’s innovative radar analysis and cellphone forensics teams.

SAVING LIVES

54,000

Operation Pulse Lift

Humanitarian Missions

Transporting medical supplies, operating emergency blood donation centers, and distributing food, water, and other essential items following natural disasters are examples of compassion missions CAP members routinely execute.

Civil Air Patrol's Operation Pulse Lift mission illustrates volunteers' efforts to serve their communities and save lives. By year's end, the effort launched to assist the American Red Cross in response to the COVID-19 pandemic had marked its 1,000th mission day, and more than 18,000 units of blood had been collected.

More Lives Saved

25,365 Cadets

Adventure Abounds

CAP cadets experience the thrill of aviation and participate in a wide variety of activities, like cybersecurity, honor guard, engineering, flight training, lifesaving and survival techniques, search and rescue, and more.

SHAPING FUTURES

Every cadet is eligible for multiple orientation flights. Many go on to pursue flight training.

Cadet confidence grows through each new challenge explored and mastered with support of peers and mentors.

Hands-on activities provide CAP cadets with exposure to potential career opportunities.

Servant Leadership

Developing Tomorrow's Leaders Today

For youth ages 12-18, CAP's breadth of programs helps develop the traits that tomorrow's civic, military, and business leaders need to be successful — confidence, character, physical and mental fitness, compassion, problem-solving abilities, and a sense of community and servant leadership.

Youth Engagement and Growth

From weekly meetings to weekend activities, to special activities and encampments, the CAP cadet experience is more dynamic than any other youth development and leadership program in the country.

Diversity - Equity - Inclusion

A diverse group of cadets from a flight training academy in 2022.

Youth Aviation Initiatives

Civil Air Patrol’s contribution to the nation’s looming pilot shortage leverages the world’s largest fleet of single-engine aircraft and experienced instructors.

CAP offers programs that take interested and qualified cadets from orientation flights to flight academies, through private pilot training.

Breaking

Outperforming the General Aviation Industry

CAP is making flight training a reality for many who may never have dreamed of becoming a pilot.

Students Impacted

K-12 Curriculum

The curriculum Civil Air Patrol provides for K-12 classrooms nationwide includes hands-on learning.

Educational products developed by CAP are making an impact on hundreds of thousands of students each year, including many in America's Title 1 schools.

Education

Aerospace

Field trips to nearby airports allow students, who may otherwise never have such an opportunity, to see an aircraft up close and talk to a pilot.

Teachers also experience the thrill of flight with orientation rides that sometimes fly over their schools so they can broadcast the experience to the students below.

STEM Kits

STEM Kits for Ages 4+

Twenty-two different STEM Kits are available free of charge to a growing number of cadets and Civil Air Patrol teacher members.

Kits focus on hydraulic, robotics, coding, flight, engineering, astronomy, rocketry, renewable energy, navigation, electronics, and more.

CAP cadets also benefit from the STEM Kits. The kits are credited with increasing their interest in STEM as well as aerospace/aviation.

SHAPING FUTURES

Bee Bots

About 80% of the K-12 students who use the STEM Kits and other CAP products in their classrooms say they too are interested in aerospace and aviation careers.

Classroom Support

Aerospace Connections in Education (ACE)

The ACE program uses CAP's aerospace theme and integrates academics, character, and physical fitness. More than 97,000 students participated in the ACE program in 525 schools (79% of which are Title 1 schools).

SHAPING FUTURES

ACE-Plus

This program connects Civil Air Patrol squadrons to classrooms to provide aerospace/STEM support, student mentorship, and an introduction to CAP. Students involved in this squadron adoption program share in the benefits and growth opportunities of the cadet program, like leadership development, flight training, and more.

Mission Types

Joint Training Participation

- Operation Green Flag East and West
- Operation Noble Eagle
- Joint Surveillance Target Attack Radar System (JSTARS)
- Surrogate Remotely Piloted Aircraft (SRPA)
- Low-level route surveys
- Southern border patrol for Task Force North
- AeroNET Communications Networking

Other Military Missions

- Naval vessel escort
- SUAS airbase counter threat
- Test mission support (e.g., providing targets for military sensors to find)
- Base security and planning support
- Transporting military personnel (e.g., Coast Guard Operation Nome and medical support to remote Alaskan communities)
- Base fire patrol
- Various nonpublicized sensitive missions
- HF communications support

Flight Training Missions

- Orientation flights (CAP, Junior ROTC, and ROTC)
- Flight academies
- Cadet Wings (CAP)
- Rated Preparatory Program (Air Force)
- Certificated flight instructor program
- Remote pilot training and recurrency (small Unmanned Aerial System)
- Pilot proficiency and recurrency training
- Mountain flying clinic

Search and Rescue Missions

- Air and ground teams
- National Cell Phone Forensics Team search
- National Radar Analysis Team search
- Small Unmanned Aerial System search
- Sundown coastal, river, and bay patrol

Emergency Services (technology)

- High-definition imagery and video
- Light Detection and Ranging (LIDAR 3D scanning)
- Forward Looking Infrared (FLIR)
- MX-15 sensor ball
- Geospatial capabilities (orthomosaic)
- Cellphone forensics
- Radar analysis

Other Emergency Services Missions

- Wildfire damage photography (air and ground)
- Flood damage photography (air and ground)
- Hurricane damage photography (air and ground)
- Tornado damage photography (air and ground)
- Earthquake damage photography (air and ground)
- Ice dam photography (air and ground)
- Tsunami warning system (airborne)
- Airborne communications relay

Miscellaneous Missions

- Teacher Orientation Program (TOP) Flights
- Operation Pulse Lift (blood collection and transport)
- Community service (staffing distribution centers)
- Supplies and equipment delivery
- Nationwide and state communications networks (FM, VHF, and HF)
- Training service dogs for air transport
- Bird migration tracking

Versatile, Flexible, Mobile, Air and Ground Fleet

Civil Air Patrol has a diverse aircraft fleet, special missions equipment, highly trained ground teams and aircrews, and a robust communications network to be deployed anywhere in the U.S. to assist local, state, and federal agencies in need.

Vietnam Veterans Chapter Increases Scholarship Endowment

The Civil Air Patrol Foundation and Detroit Chapter #9 of the Vietnam Veterans of America have expanded their partnership nearly tenfold. After donating $12,500 to CAP for scholarships in 2020, in April 2023 the chapter endowed the scholarships for $90,000.

“Civil Air Patrol feels so blessed to have this endowed scholarship,” said Col. Chris Ballard, Michigan Wing commander.

Added Col. Raj Kothari, CAP Foundation Board chair: “This endowment is going to allow us to support cadets in Civil Air Patrol for decades to come and will have an immeasurable impact on their lives.”

The announcement came as the group awarded its latest scholarship. Cadet 2nd Lt. Antonio Accardo of the Livonia Thunderbolt Composite Squadron received this year’s $2,500 scholarship.

Accardo “exemplifies cadet leadership,” Ballard said, citing his leadership in creating a squadron recruiting drive.

The award was presented at the chapter’s monthly meeting as Accardo’s parents and grandparents looked on.

Scholarship Recipient

Col. Chris Ballard, Michigan Wing commander, and Cadet 2nd Lt. Antonio Accardo of the Livonia Thunderbolt Composite Squadron hold the certificate representing the $2,500 scholarship the cadet received from Detroit Chapter #9 of the Vietnam Veterans of America.

Accardo said. “This is very humbling.”

Requirements for a scholarship include being a high school senior or graduate or earning a GED; earning CAP’s Gen. Billy Mitchell Award or higher; acceptance to a college; attendance at an accredited post-secondary school or college; and full-time enrollment during the academic year for which the scholarship is awarded.

Legacy of Flight

By Loretta Fulton

Recipients of Civil Air Patrol's Cornelia Fort Flight Scholarship may have to do some online research to find out just who Fort was. An incredible story awaits those who do. She was in the air over Hawaii instructing one of her student pilots Dec. 7, 1941, when they were forced to land as Japanese fighter planes filled the sky that fateful day.

Lt. Col. Richard Flowers, a distant relative, grew up hearing her story and today can honor her and the organization he loves and serves — Civil Air Patrol. Flowers, also a CAP Foundation board member, and his wife, Beth, donated funds to establish the new flight scholarship for cadets in her honor.

Flowers' famous relative was a Civil Air Patrol member at a time when female pilots were still a novelty. She joined the Women's Auxiliary Ferrying Squadron (WAFS), which later merged with the Women's Flying Training Detachment, and was eventually renamed the Women Airforce Service Pilots (WASP) — famous for transporting military aircraft from fighters to bombers during World War II.

Fort was born into an affluent Tennessee family in 1919 and graduated from Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, New York, in 1939. She returned to society life in Nashville after college but soon discovered the thrill of flying.

Family lore says Rufus Fort warned his sons not to become pilots, but apparently, he failed to pass on that warning to his daughter. She took her first flying lesson in 1940 and a year later became a flight instructor.

"She certainly ripped the blinders off a lot of people," Flowers said.

She worked with President Franklin D. Roosevelt's civilian pilot training program, first in Fort Collins, Colorado, and then in Hawaii. By 1942, she was part of the WAFS and was serving in Long Beach, California, when she began her fatal journey ferrying a BT-13A to Dallas.

On March 21, 1943, Fort perished in an aircraft accident in a remote stretch of west Texas close to Sweetwater, near Avenger Field. A state historical marker was placed at the crash site in 2000. One passage notes Fort's sentiments shortly before her death at age 24.

"I am grateful that my one talent, flying, was useful to my country," she said.

It was that story and Fort's dedication to flying and to her nation that Richard Flowers grew up hearing and reading about. His grandfather, Henry Fort Flowers, was a second cousin to Rufus Fort, Cornelia's father.

"I'm probably her third cousin once removed," Flowers said.

That's close enough for Flowers to be proud of the name and legacy. Her distant cousin, Flowers, also is a man of many talents, including earning a private pilot certificate and serving as a glider instructor. He earned a civil engineering degree from Virginia Military Institute and later added a master's in business administration from Vanderbilt University and a law degree from Ohio Northern University.

He used all those degrees, retiring from his legal career in 2012. And he served in the U.S. Marine Corps, primarily its reserve force, from 1969-1980.

Flowers lives in Florida, where he is assistant communications officer for Fort Lauderdale Composite Squadron 337. He believes he owes much to CAP, which he joined in 2004.

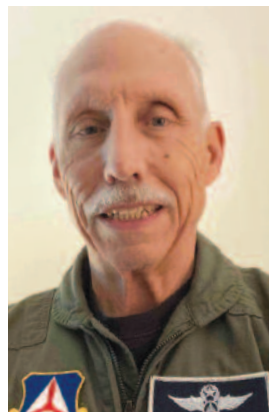

"This is just another example of how Rich serves our nation and our CAP community. His service as a volunteer airman, his contribution as a CAP Foundation Board member, and now his financial support in memory of his cousin is a testament to his spirit of service," said Rajesh Kothari, CAP

Foundation chair.

"We are thankful to the Flowers family for bringing Cornelia's legacy to light. What's exciting is an annual flight scholarship will be provided for a cadet honoring Cornelia's legacy. This means our cadets will know her name and her story well into the future," said Kristina Jones, the foundation's president and executive director.

A biography written by Rob Simbeck sparked an even deeper respect in Flowers for his "third cousin once removed." The book, "Daughter of the Air: The Brief Soaring Life of Cornelia Fort," sealed Flowers' desire to honor her best way he could think of.

Lt. Col. Richard Flowers, Jr., has established a flight scholarship honoring his late cousin, Cornelia Fort.

He hopes the scholarship bearing Cornelia Fort's name will spark an interest — and respect — in others, as well.

"It will remind them of the diversity of our membership," Flowers said, "and why that's important."

If you are interested in establishing a scholarship or endowment, please contact Kristina Jones, CFRE, M.A., Chief of Philanthropy, at legacy@gocivilairpatrol.org or 833-IAM-4CAP (833-426-4227).

2022 Commander's Circle

The following recognition represents a transition from listing donors in the Annual Report based on Civil Air Patrol's fiscal year to doing so for a calendar year. The 2022 Commander's Circle includes donors who have given a cumulative donation of $1,000 and above from Oct. 1, 2021-Dec. 31, 2022. We welcome the following donors to the Commander's Circle.

Legacy of Determination

By Loretta Fulton

John A. Soley was just a kid, second oldest of seven, in a small Pennsylvania coal mining town mired in the Great Depression when a twist of fate shaped who he would become.

One day he hitched a ride on a coal truck passing by the family home. Suddenly he slipped off the truck and was run over — but that's not where Soley's story ended.

Instead, it was just the beginning. A body cast, traction, and several years of hospitalizations and rehabilitation followed, but undaunted, he persevered.

While his young life took a sharp turn that day, rather than letting that accident rule his life, Soley set his eyes on the future. Determination drove him to overcome the permanent effects of the accident and led him to far-flung places most Depression-era kids might not even dream of.

One of those places was the sky.

His love of aviation led him to join Civil Air Patrol, where he served as a pilot and rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel. Flying missions to monitor wildfires or search for missing people were just some of his airborne adventures.

His wanderlust took him to Alaska, Guam, and finally to California, where he chose to stay and become a real estate agent. Ever determined, Soley worked his way through UCLA while selling real estate.

"He had a hard start," said his younger brother, Ted Soley. "He was a very determined person and when he set his sights out to do something, he did it."

When John Soley passed away in 2020 at age 92, his estate plan included donations to two of his great loves — CAP and his alma mater, UCLA.

"We're grateful for Lt. Col. Soley's contributions to Civil Air Patrol that will continue beyond his many years of service," said Col. Raj Kothari, Civil Air Patrol Foundation chair. "Annual distributions from his legacy funding will be used where most needed to fulfill our organizational mission of saving lives and shaping futures."

Soley served Civil Air Patrol for many years as an active member and he clearly set his sights on making a lasting impact long into the future. His legacy as a donor ensures that his service to the organization he loved will continue.
